

Amendments to the Specification:

Please replace first paragraph on page 6 with the following amended paragraph:

Fluoride salts have been used for years for desensitization of root surfaces. Forms of fluorides such as sodium fluoride preparations are found in toothpastes such as Preident 500 Plus ® from Colgate®. When used, this fluoride causes the formation of calcium fluoride and other minerals that close the dentinal tubules. A more concentrated sodium fluoride product is the fluoride varnish. This product provides immediate relief for large areas of exposed root surfaces causing hypersensitivity.

Please replace the second paragraph of page 6 with the following amended paragraph:

Oxalate crystal solutions are another means of mineralizing the dentinal tubule openings. Butler Protect ® is an example of a product that causes potassium oxalate to form sealing the tubules. It is available as a toothpaste for patient use or as a solution for professional application.

Please replace first paragraph on page 7 with the following one:

Oral-B® provides a regular, manual sensitive toothbrush and an extra-soft brushhead refill for the Oral-B® range of power toothbrushes. Both brushes have ultra-soft, end rounded bristles that are specially designed to be gentle on sensitive tissue.
